Dear Hiring Manager

It is with great interest and excitement that I am applying for a position in your company, believing my motivation and technical skillsets position me well to add immediate value to your ongoing projects and most importantly the clients you serve. I am also very interested in the learning opportunity that working with an industry leader will provide me.

Recent project and academic activities have seen me deliver superior client-centric design excellence, developing end-user focused digital touchpoints. Upon completion of my Diploma in Computer Programming at Sheridan College, much of my recent history and indeed, my passion lies in delivering a heightened User Experience as a Web Developer. In addition to my Diploma, I attended Cyber Security courses online, with final tests and practical exams.

Adept at creating and expanding upon User Stories, I deploy extensive programming and coding (in a variety of environments including HTML, CSS and Java) skillsets to deliver user-focused digital products. At all times, I am guided by the end-user experience to create responsive web solutions.

I adopt an approach to work whose guiding characteristics are integrity, inclusion, accountability, teamwork, a profound respect for the individual and diversity. I am certain that these characteristics find resonance with your company's value system and to that end have attached a copy of my résumé for your review and consideration.

I am open to relocate to Europe, I am willing to answer any further questions, by email or phone number listed above. In the meantime, a portfolio of my work can be seen at <https://github.com/luc1342as2>

With Best Regards,

Lucas Ghigli
